

An alternative to kite aerial photography on windless days or on sites where kite photography would be impractical. Photographs taken using this method are taken from lower altitudes than kite images but still have the potential to provide unique views. As with kite photography it can very useful to record inaccessible parts of a building or standing structure without the need for scaffolding or other access equipment.

Click here for Important Information about Kite and Pole Aerial Photography

Click here for Potential Uses

